★ Researcher Profiles: Managing your digital ID (online seminar)
For those who missed the recent session at Southbank...here is an opportunity to find out more. Note: This is a general session not specifically tailored for VCA and MCM, but still of course very relevant!

Researcher profiles make it easy for funders, collaborators and colleagues to find you. These can ensure that your work is correctly attributed, remove author ambiguity, and showcase the impact of your research. In this online seminar, ORCID, Researcher ID, Scopus and Google Scholar profiles will be discussed.
When: Monday 14 September 11am-12pm
Where: ONLINE (Lenton Parr Library, Victorian College of the Arts, Southbank)
More information and registration: http://go.unimelb.edu.au/zx6a
Australia-India Strategic Research Fund (AISRF)
AISRF Round 9 to support collaborative research projects is open for applications from 20 August to 15 October 2015. This is the last day applications can be submitted.

To apply, eligible research organisations must submit an online application form in accordance with the AISRF guidelines and application instructions. Only one application per organisation is permitted in this round in total, under either the AISRF’s Indo-Australian Science and Technology Fund or the Indo-Australian Biotechnology Fund component (not both). Please also refer to Frequently Asked Questions. Outcomes of Round 9 are expected to be announced in February/March 2016, with projects starting by June 2016.

Funding of $500,000–$1,000,000 is available to each successful Australian applicant and will be aimed at projects that can demonstrate a clear path to end use. Applicants can apply to undertake a collaborative research project in the following priority areas, under either the AISRF’s Indo-Australian Science and Technology Fund or the Indo-Australian Biotechnology Fund component.

2. Resources and Support
Change to research student partner leave entitlement
The Graduate Research Candidature Procedure (MPG1281) section 6, Parental leave has been updated. The leave entitlement for a graduate research student who is eligible for partner leave has changed from 12 months to 8 weeks. An eligible graduate research student is defined as: the partner of a primary carer of either a new-born or a newly adopted child under the age of 16 years.
Update to Supervision of Research Higher Degrees Student Policy

The Supervision of Research Higher Degrees Student Policy (MPF1244) has been updated. Under section 1, Appointment of supervisors three new sub-sections have been included:

- 1.6 covers conflict of interest with regards to supervision eligibility
- 1.7 and 1.8 cover restrictions on enrolled University of Melbourne graduate research students eligibility to supervise other University of Melbourne graduate researchers.

Under section 7, Eligibility to supervise a subsection has changed:

7.3 has been updated to include that final approval of the appointment of an external supervisor to a student’s supervisory team is the responsibility of the Head of the Administrative Department (or their nominee).

It is recommended that staff involved in the supervision of graduate research students and the approval of supervision arrangements review these policy changes.

Attention Fine Arts HDR students undertaking practice led research degrees

What: Artists undertaking a practice led research degree are invited to volunteer to participate in a research project titled:

"How can academic information literacy librarians support the information needs of visual arts higher degree students undertaking practice led research?"

The study will investigate the information needs and behaviours of practice led Fine Arts PhD/Masters research students. Therefore, to participate you need to be currently undertaking this degree. The study is to be conducted by myself, Tanya Wilson, Senior Liaison Librarian at Melbourne University and Masters student, Charles Sturt University.

STEPPE (a journey of unforgetting) - premieres at Melbourne Fringe Festival

You are invited to bear witness, to embark on a journey...

It’s the middle of the night. There’s 30 minutes to pack, but you don’t know where you’re going. When those 30 minutes are up the boundaries of your life will have shifted. Irrevocably.

Is a woman still herself when everything she knows is taken from her?

Deported from her country, separated from the ones she loves and sent to labour on the unremitting Siberian Steppe, Kasia clings to the hope that one day a letter from her husband might arrive. After all, she keeps writing to him so very often.

Inspired by letters written by playwright Grace Pundyk’s Polish grandmother, letters that had remained hidden until the death of her own father, STEPPE is an urgent exploration of survival and loss, and the words we need to keep speaking when annihilation threatens.

Presented by Goodnight Sofie!

Graduate Research Roundtable on International Human Rights, Refugee and Asylum Seeker issues
Melbourne CSHE is seeking expressions of interest from anyone enrolled in a graduate research degree (PhD, Masters by Research, MPhil, Research Doctorate and Professional Doctorate) to participate in a special event facilitated by Melbourne CSHE and led by Visiting Fellow Professor James Hathaway, recent Dean of the University of Melbourne Law School, and current Director for the Program in Refugee and Asylum Law at the University of Michigan.
This is an exceptional chance to work with Professor Hathaway who is a leading authority on international refugee law. His work is regularly cited by the most senior courts of the common law world. He regularly provides training on refugee law to academic, non-governmental, and official audiences around the world.
We are seeking a group of interested graduate researchers who are willing to discuss their own work and connect with others doing research in the context of the bigger issues in International Human Rights, Refugee and Asylum Seeker issues with an interdisciplinary audience on 21 September 2015. You do not have to be doing law-based research to participate – an important element of the roundtable is its interdisciplinary focus.
Please register online and provide an expression of interest on why you would like to attend this event (not more than 150 words) and a précis of your research project that you will share with other participants at the round table (not more than 200 words) to the email address melbourne-cshe@unimelb.edu.au
Important: The expression of interest must be in Word document form, attached to your email, with the email subject header “Expression of interest Graduate Research Round table on International Human Rights”. Applications that do not adhere to these instructions will not be accepted. The expression of interest is due no later than close of business (5pm) Tuesday 1 September.
For questions about sending in your expression of interest for the roundtable, please contact Caitland Coulson caitland.coulson@unimelb.edu.au

Australian National Academy of Music (ANAM) presents Simone Young & Brahms Gala Concert
What: Join Australia’s most exceptional young musicians, Artistic Director of the Hamburg State Opera Simone Young and Helpmann Award-winner Emma Matthews (soprano) for this special gala concert.
In 2014 Australian-born, internationally renowned conductor Simone Young and the ANAM Orchestra electrified Melbourne audiences with their dramatic performance of Brahms’ Fourth Symphony. This September, Simone Young returns to lead the ANAM Orchestra in Brahms’ 2nd Symphony, bringing her experience and insight to this great piece of Romantic repertoire. One of Australia’s most highly awarded sopranos, Emma Matthews joins Simone and ANAM, singing a selection of exquisite songs by Henri Duparc.
Purchase tickets to Simone Young and Brahms Gala Concert before Friday 7 August and enter the draw to win one of ten passes to join ANAM artists at the VIP interval function on the night of the performance. Use the promo code YOUNG when booking.
When: Friday 18 September 7.30pm

5. Conferences

Art after the future: Hito Steyerl & the global digital image
Call for papers – Panel At AAANZ
Tara Cook (University of Melbourne) & Dylan Rainforth (Monsah University)
Email: taraelizabethcook@gmail.com
Hito Steyerl is one of the most interesting artistic practitioners and writers working today. Her speculations on the way everyday reality enmeshes with the internet and digitisation have potent critical value for those seeking to understand the contemporary global moment. The first Australian survey of Steyerl's work, Too Much World – mounted in Brisbane at the IMA from 13 December 2014 to 22 March 2015 – reflected a profound and ongoing interest from antipodean practitioners to understand their position within wider and ever accelerating global image economies. This panel is directly focussed on Steyerl’s significant theoretical and artistic work as a platform to address the image under contemporary digital and global conditions. Interrelationships between body, space and image are central to Steyerl’s practice and literature. Her artworks, such as Factory of the Sun (2015) at Venice Biennale, How not to Be Seen A F_kinf Didactic educational. Mov file (2013) and Liquidity Inc (2014), as well as essays such as ”In defence of the poor image” (2009) and “Too much world: is the internet dead?” (2014), offer poetic yet sharply pointed examinations of the ways bodily reality is produced – rather than merely reflected – by images and screens under accelerated digital capitalism.

The panel will engage with topics such as:

• circulationism and networked image economies
• expanded essayistic film practices in the digital age
• the poor image and digital materiality
• interdisciplinary criticality (the artist as critical theorist or [practice-led researcher)
• networked bodies and the place of the post-Fordist (creative) worker under digital capitalism
• the ends of art and art history – their digital afterlife

PERFORMART ’15 – Performance Arts Conference

What: PERFORMART Conference takes lead from the ever-existing relation between the performing arts and public space and focuses mostly on the culminating new performing arts events, festivals, celebrations that use public space, and concentrates on the confrontations, problems and opportunities between the two. However, it also wants to explore the exchange and dialogue between the designated spaces for performing arts such as theatre venues, theatre halls, alternative performing arts spaces and public space. PERFORMART also encourages the participants to reflect upon various possible takes on the term “public space” rather than considering it a mere physical space/venue.
When: Saturday, 19 December to Sunday, 20 December

Where: Istanbul, Turkey
